this book is based on the assumption that the world is governed by a widespread field of interconnected laws in this field man made laws legal laws have to coexist with the laws of nature the laws of science and the laws of logic they have to find their place in relation to a certain society they have to relate to the demands of morality ethics custom and trust they have to follow the laws of language they have to deal with a variety of professional and esthetic rules they have to defend their position between art and craft finally and significantly they have to cope with a host of different ideas about truth this book approaches law as a human construct meant to strengthen society as it develops through the ages knowledge of the law legal knowledge is of doubtful value if it ignores the demands and ideals of society the same goes for the thinking leading to legal knowledge this book focuses on a basic concept that concept is met if the legal thinking leading to legal knowledge reaches the level of an independent law and society oriented contemplative discipline a discipline which is in that sense and to that extent in touch with cherished or less cherished parts of given law solid economic analysis and examples are included in this text the latest microeconomic theory is used to develop economic theories concerning the core areas of the laws property contracts torts and crime these economic theories are then used to analyze topics in each of the four key areas for developing countries a stable and secure supply of electricity is crucial for development and for their populations well being since the early 1990s the main mechanism for constructing power generation facilities in developing countries has been the independent power project (IPP) model where a foreign investor enters into long term investment contracts with the national utility this model has succeeded in attracting investment but raises complex regulatory and contractual challenges in addition to public concerns this book drawing on project contracts the author's interview sources case law and literature analyzes in detail the legal investment protection used by IPP investors to ensure sufficient returns and protect their contracted revenue stream the author examines how the model's corporate financial structure interlocks with strong contractual rights and with a number of measures used to improve the host country's creditworthiness in the short and long term including investment guarantees the second part of the book identifies that the IPP model normally leads to six main consequences for the host developing country the IPP model has led to private investment which has increased reliability modernization and introduced private standards it contains an intrinsic structural weakness in times of economic downturns it has shown a tendency to lead to overinvestment in generation capacity it has shown a tendency to lead to expensive and suboptimal solutions regarding choice of design and technology the model and its institutional surroundings contains insufficient disincentives against moral hazard and exploitative behavior including corruption and the ipp model does not facilitate a further development of the host country's power sector the author argues that these consequences for development can be improved without detrimentally compromising the private sector's willingness to continue to invest while pursuing this analysis the author also explores such issues as the following the web of parties and contracts constituting the ipp model including the model's risk allocation an analysis of political risk including to what extent foreign investors also are protected against commercial and credit risks the competing needs of predictability and flexibility in long term contracts how investment arbitration tribunals have reacted both to the change in macroeconomic circumstances caused by the east asian crisis of 1997-98 and to numerable and credible allegations of corruption during procurement identification of factors reducing or increasing the ipp model's tendency to fail during severe economic recessions this is an expanded second edition of nicholas mercuro and steven medema's influential book economics and the law whose publication in 1998 marked the most comprehensive overview of the various schools of thought in the burgeoning field of law and economics each of these competing yet complementary traditions has both redefined the study of law and exposed the key economic implications of the legal environment the book remains true to the scope and aims of the first edition but also takes account of the field's evolution at the book's core is an expanded discussion of the chicago school public choice theory institutional law and economics and new institutional economics a new chapter explores the law and economics literature on social norms today an integral part of each of the schools of thought the chapter on the new haven and modern civic republican approaches has likewise been expanded these chapters are complemented by a discussion of the austrian school of law and economics each chapter now includes an at work section presenting applications of that particular school of thought by providing readers with a concise noncritical description of the broad contours of each school this book illuminates the fundamental insights of a field with important implications not only for economics and the law but also for political science philosophy public administration and sociology
